Duck Creek Payments

Payments. Integrated

Before you can transact, you need to connect

The payments ecosystem offers a multitude of payment methods and providers to choose from, allowing for an incredible variety of collection and disbursement options that cater to every need and situation.

The first step in offering and leveraging any of these payment services is to connect to them. And it is these connections that create a stumbling block for many carriers. Integrations are complex, time-consuming, resource-intensive, and expensive, meaning that very often, insurers don't fully leverage what the payments ecosystem has to offer.

Duck Creek solves the payment problem

Duck Creek has developed a cloud-based payments platform connecting insurers to the payments ecosystem, regardless of their existing IT infrastructure. Through a single connection to Duck Creek, insurers can collect or pay out using any payment technologies and provider in their market of choice.

We do all the heavy lifting of integrating with providers and enabling new payment methods, saving insurers precious time, money and resources.

The Solution

Duck Creek Payments allows carriers to design their ideal payment solution. Insurers can choose their ideal interface, payment technology and provider, existing or new, though one integration.
